THE KING ALFRED

London, Oct. 28.—The King Alfred, one of the largest cruisers in the world, was successfully launched at Barrow-in-Furness today. The King Alfred cost £1,011,799. She will have a speed of 23 knots.

The King Alfred is the third to be launched of four armored cruisers of what is known as the "Drake class."

The first of the class was launched on February 21st and the Drake on March 5th, while the Leviathan is still on the slips at Clydebank.

The characteristics of the class is a combination of two thick armored decks with vertical side plating. The principal dimensions are: Length between perpendiculars, 500 feet; extreme breadth, 11 feet 4 inches; mean load draught, 26 feet; displacement at load draught, 14,150 tons.

At the fore and after ends of the ship are the barbettes for mounting the two 9.2 inch long guns, protected by 6-inch armor. Sixteen 6-inch breech-loading guns will be mounted, one in each casemate; twelve 12-pounder quick-firing guns on the upper deck, and the inferior armament will consist of two 6-inch and four 12-pounders and three 3-pounder quick-firing guns. There will also be nine 75 Maxims, with two submerged torpedo tubes, each capable of discharging 18-inch torpedoes.

The National Review gives the essential terms of the dispatch from Sir Redvers Buller to General Sir George White, when in command of the beleaguered British garrison at Ladysmith. According to this authority the message ran as follows:

I have been repulsed. You will burn your ciphers and destroy all your ammunition. You will then make the best terms you can with the Boers after I have fortified myself on the Tugela.

General Buller in the speech which led to his dismissal from the command of the First Army Corps challenged the National Review to publish the full dispatch and to explain how it was obtained, declaring that he would then publish a certified copy of the original and allow the public to judge the matter.

The editor of the National Review now explains that he got the dispatch from a civilian who was in Ladysmith at the time and who said there was nothing secret about it. He asserts also that he understands that both General Buller and General White have officially asked permission to publish the authorized version, and that he cannot conceive why permission has been withheld.

The same informant, giving an alleged explanation of the fact that there was no co-operation between General Buller and General White during the battle of Colenso, says that General White was informed that the attack was fixed for December 15th, but General Buller commenced the attack on December 15th, to the dismay of General White, who had not completed his preparations.

The Morning Leader characterizes the National Review's version of General Buller's dispatch to Sir George White as "imaginary and misleading."

DISPATCH GEN. BULLER SENT TO GEN. WHITE

London, Oct. 31.—The National Review gives the essential terms of the dispatch from Sir Redvers Buller to General Sir George White, when in command of the beleaguered British garrison at Ladysmith. According to this authority the message ran as follows:

WOMAN WENT OVER NIAGARA IN A BARREL

Niagara Falls, Oct. 24.—One of the most daring feats ever attempted was accomplished here today when Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, in a barrel, navigated the Canadian rapids and plunged over the Horseshoe falls, a drop of 165 feet. Mrs. Taylor has the distinction of being the only human being who has gone over the falls of Niagara and lived.

She had a well-made barrel, padded and equipped with a harness of straps. She came from Bay City, Mich., where she had been engaged in teaching school. Today was her forty-third birthday, and she decided to celebrate that event in this manner. The barrel was started over the falls at 4 o'clock and forty minutes later was taken from the water half a mile below. It was necessary to saw a portion of the top away to get her out. She walked across a plank to the shore and was soon on her way to her boarding house in this city. The barrel was half filled with water and Mrs. Taylor has a cut three inches long behind her right ear. Her shoulders are strained and she suffered severely from the shock, but the doctors say she will recover.

NOVELTIES IN STEAMERS.

New York, Oct. 28.—The Hamburg-American line is to revolutionize trans-Atlantic passenger trade, in a way, in the construction of several ships that are intended to surpass everything afloat in the novelty line. It was announced today that the company had decided to call two of the ships the Moltke and Blucher, after famous generals. While of the Pennsylvania class, the ships will be 12,000 tons, or 1000 tons less than the Pennsylvania, but will make sixteen knots, or two knots an hour more than that type of craft.

The ships will have only a few upper berths and will be fitted out with grill rooms, gymnasiums and a playground for children. Each will have twin screws and an indicated horse power of 8000. Unlike the Pennsylvania class the ships are meant for the transportation of passengers rather than for immense cargoes of freight.
